Volunteers needed for Handi-Riders

Volunteers are needed for Handi-Riders, a therapeutic horseback riding program for people with disabilities. The program is expanding from a summer evening program to a year-round program with expanded outreach. Volunteers serve as leaders and side-walkers to assist participants and ensure their safety as they ride. No horse experience is necessary for side-walkers. Avera McKennan serves as a sponsor for this organization. For more information, go to www.handi-riders.com or call Sue Karges, Executive Director, (605) 270-9449, Kaia Kloster, Development Director, (605) 360-2812 or email handiriders@yahoo.com

On-site construction

A reminder for all staff to adhere to any and all barricades, caution tape, cones and/or signage on campus for either security or safety reasons. In addition, if there is construction being done within your normal route, please take a different route if possible. As always, if you see a safety concern please contact us; 322-7674/7817. Thank you.

LifeLight Festival 2010

Avera is a platinum sponsor for LifeLight Festival 2010. The free Christian music festival will take place Sept. 3-5 at Worthing, S.D., 12 miles south of Sioux Falls.

This year, Avera will provide The Avera Mommy House, a caring environment for mothers and their young children. The air conditioned trailer provides a respite for moms and their young children to get out of the heat, a place to feed or a cool place for the children to nap. The house has all the essentials such as rocking chairs, a water cooler, and diaper supplies (donated by Avera employees). Volunteers are needed to restock supplies, empty garbage and assess for any additional needs. Since many moms that utilize the Mommy House are nursing, female volunteers are required. This is a wonderful way to display our mission at Avera Health to mothers and their babies. Parents who have used the Mommy House have been very thankful for this service. To view available volunteer shifts, go to Sharepoint/Behavioral Health/LifeLight 2010/Mommy House Volunteer sign-up. To sign up, contact Michael Jerke at Michael.Jerke@avera.org or 2-4329 and leave a message.

Run For His Glory is a 5K and 10K road race and 3K fun run/walk as part of LifeLight, beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 4 at the LifeLight festival grounds in Worthing. The race is open to everyone of all ages and skill levels who want to run or walk. All entrants will receive a T-shirt and prizes will be awarded to top finishers in age categories in the 5K and 10K races. Entry fee is $25 for individual and $40 for family ($35 and $60 the day of the race). To sign up, go to www.allsportcentral.com. To learn more or to sign up to volunteer go to www.lifelight.org.

Learn about your health risks

Take FREE online Health Risk Assessments at www.AveraMcKennen.org to instantly learn about your risk of diseases such as stroke, colon cancer, breast cancer, diabetes and more. A new assessment is added each month – the new one in August covers general health.

You’ll answer private, personalized questions based on your age, lifestyle, pre-existing conditions and heredity. These assessments measure your risk so you can arm yourself with the information you need to protect your health and your life. Log on, open an account, take the free assessment, print off your results and take it to your doctor. Health Risk Assessments are offered as a community service as part of Avera McKennan’s commitment to improve the health and lives of men and women throughout our region.

Are you a cancer survivor?

INFO IN THE NEWS

SculptureWalk Avera McKennan

Now on display throughout the Avera McKennan campus are 18 new sculptures, marking the third year of SculptureWalk Avera McKennan. Read INFO to learn more about the artists who are featured in this exhibit:

John Sterner, "Sazi-To-Inya"

Sazi-To-Inya. What does it mean? Translated from Lakota, the artist says it means "from blue to orange." One of the most colorful pieces in the Avera McKennan SculptureWalk, artist John Sterner says he got his inspiration from a dancer. "I was originally watching a fancy dancer at a Pow-Wow," he says. "Imagine a figure skater as they do one of those fast spins in the Olympics. That is what this image is. I wanted to simplify the original image to its most basic elemental shape. And this is what I came up with."

The sculpture, made out of lost foam bronze and iron, and embellished with horse hair, stands 24-inches tall and weighs 50 pounds. "Originally I modeled the entire piece out of white bead board Styrofoam and green floral ring foam. I later immersed it into loose sand, and vibrated it until the sand was very tight," he explains.

"We then poured bronze and iron separately into each part." After more heating and rinsing, Sterner used copper tubes he found and then glued orange-dyed horse hair into the tubes. "These hair pieces really impact the movement of the piece," he says.

"I find this piece really dynamic and exciting. It's a 'talker' piece." Using American Indians as inspiration for his work comes second nature to Sterner. He says he focuses mainly on his Sicangu Lakota heritage and combines that with his love of movement and action. "Most of my abstracted work is related to this piece (Sazi-To-Inya) in shape, form, energy and content. I really try to find the basic lines or shapes to define an image and capture the movement and energy that forces the viewer to look again."

Brochures directing visitors through the walk are available in the front lobby or in racks located on most sculptures. Sculptures, owned by the artists, are on loan to the exhibit for one year. Through Sept. 30, employees are encouraged to join the public in voting for their favorite sculpture, and Avera McKennan will purchase the favorite add it to our permanent art collection. All featured sculptures, both downtown and at Avera McKennan, are for sale. For more information please contact SculptureWalk at (605) 339-8359.

Welcome Project SEARCH interns

Avera McKennan recently welcomed a group of interns as part of Project SEARCH.

Project SEARCH is a unique business-led transition program for students with disabilities. It provides students who want to work a chance to explore careers and develop transferable job skills. The ultimate goal is to help interns become independent adults working in a competitive environment.

Designed as an internship program, Project SEARCH places students in real-world situations where they learn all aspects of gaining and maintaining a job. Large organizations such as banks, hospitals, or universities typically host the program, and students learn new work skills on site.

Avera McKennan is serving as host site in Sioux Falls with internship opportunities including patient services assistant, tray line worker, food services worker, housekeeper, materials handler, sterile processing technician, linen technician, laundry worker and admissions representative.

Job placements are based on a student's experiences, strengths and skills. A series of job rotations lasting up to 10 weeks allow students to seek positions that best suit their interests and skills. They receive support with accommodations, adaptations, and on-the-job coaching.

Lori Popkes, assistant vice president for Women's and Children's Services, said involvement in Project SEARCH is just one more way for Avera McKennan to live out its mission of making a positive impact in the lives of persons and communities. She quoted Martin Luther King who said, "Life's most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?"

"Project SEARCH provides a supportive, safe environment to help the interns develop skills and experiences that will prepare them to successfully enter the workforce," Popkes said. "It's also a great opportunity to showcase our organization and the care that is provided here, and potentially recruit great people." Pediatrics is hosting two Project SEARCH interns.

Bret Corcoran, facility services supervisor, agreed. "It's a wonderful chance for these students to get work experience where they normally wouldn't have that option. Giving them this opportunity to learn, grow and be productive on their own is going to bolster their confidence in ways we may not ever know," Corcoran said.

As parent of a Project SEARCH intern, Debbie Spinar says she appreciates the program because it sees beyond her son's disability. "He went through an interview process – just as if he were applying for a job. He's just seen as one of the employees who is doing his job to the best of his ability. His goal is to have his own apartment and live on his own, just like every other 21-year-old, and I believe that Project SEARCH can help him achieve this."

Keri Statema, Project SEARCH teacher, said the start of the program at Avera McKennan has been a huge success. "The people at Avera have been so welcoming to us and the students are excited to begin their work." The first students began work this week in Housekeeping, with other students starting throughout the rest of August and September.

Students who have completed all academic requirements for graduation from high school may apply for enrollment in Project SEARCH. Participants may be 18 to 21 years old. East Dakota Educational Cooperative provides Project SEARCH through a partnership with Avera McKennan and Division of Rehabilitation Services and Service to the Blind and Visually Impaired. For questions about the program, please call (605) 367-7680 ext. 102.

Pictured are (left to right) front row, Gabby Volk (Pediatrics) and Cory Anderson (Pediatrics); second row, Danielle Schumacher (cafeteria), Allie

Andrashie (housekeeping) and Raquel Navarrate (linens); third row, Sadie Benz (linens), Alan Spinar (Patient Financial Services) and C.J. Mueller (maintenance).

Prayers and Squares

Avera McKennan has become a member of the international organization "Prayers and Squares," a ministry in which quilts will be made and given to patients at the Avera Cancer Institute when it opens this fall. Each quilt is a tied quilt, and the strings that are placed in the quilt are left untied. When a staff member, visitor or family member offers a prayer for that patient, they tie a knot in the quilt, so each knot represents a prayer for that person. Three groups of volunteers are currently making quilts, but more volunteers with sewing skills are needed. A room has been designated for material and sewing equipment in the Volunteer Services office at Avera McKennan. Donations of cotton material are also needed and the Avera McKennan Foundation has set up a fund for monetary donations to this ministry. If anyone would like to form a work group to make quilts they can contact Volunteer Services or Lyle Kroon at lyle.kroon@avera.org.

Join the Heart Walk

Avera is a top sponsor of this year's American Heart Association Start! Heart Walk, scheduled for Saturday, August 28 at Falls Park. Patty Larson and John Srstka are coordinating Avera McKennan teams and T-shirts. If you are interested in forming or joining a team email them at patty.larson@avera.org or john.srstka@avera.org by Aug. 20. Each team member is asked to submit a $25 donation to the American Heart Association, which includes a T-shirt. Teams will be automatically registered in the American Heart Association Heart Walk website and members will receive an email with information on how to use the Heart Walk website to raise additional funds. For more information, contact Jen McKeown at (605) 310-8606 or jen.mckeown@heart.org.

Internet Safety for Teens

Are you a parent? If you are, have you already had the internet safety talk with your child? If you have yet to do so, this is a discussion that you will want to have. Since many teenagers like using social networking websites, online message boards, internet chat rooms, and instant messaging programs, internet safety is a subject that must be discussed. Just a few of the many reasons why you should have the internet safety talk with your child are outlined below.

- 1. They may not know: They may be unaware of the dangers that lurk on many popular websites, including online chat rooms and social networking websites.
 - 2. It is your job, as the parent: Perhaps, the greatest reason why you should talk to your child about internet use and internet safety is because it is your job to do so.
 - 3. It will help to keep them safe: As much as we would all like to believe that the world is filled with nice, happy people, it isn't. Unfortunately, many of those people, who may be child predators, are finding it easy to target children online. Why? Because the internet enables anyone to create their own identity.
 - 4. You can teach them what to do: Let them know that they cannot discuss personal information or share pictures or videos with strangers. You should also let your child know what to do if they are targeted or harassed by someone online. This should involve coming to you immediately or saving all information, as opposed to erasing it from the computer, until you or the police can examine it.
 - 5. They can feel more comfortable talking to you: If your child is in high school or middle school, they may automatically get defensive when you try to talk to them about internet safety. This is because most kids believe that they already know all that is needed to know and others just assume that you are being an overbearing parent. Despite this, discussing internet safety with your child in a calm and cool manner is likely to make your teenager feel comfortable about the issue. This increases the chances of them approaching you when they run into trouble online.
